of blood and properly clease the wounds.

Word was at once sent to Montreal and an order from there was sent to Levis to send out a force of doctors from Quebec to attend the wounded and a force of men to cleat the track. A special train from 'tere reached here at an early hour and all of the wounded who could be moved were placed on board and sent to Levis, where they could be cared for in the hospitals.

It is hard to any where the blame for the accident rests. It has been suggested that Engineer Melecad might have fallen asleep and thus missed seeing the warning semaphore and was unconscious of his whereabouts.

This would seem to be the only theory that can be be advanced. A strict investigation will be held at once to determine where the responsibility rests.

The captain of the Bath schooner Eunice Crocker had a queer story to tell when he reached New York, last week. During the voyage the negro steward, Henry Silvie by name, mysteriously disappeared and a thorough search falled to disclose any clue to his fate. Another man was put in his place, and some time after the sound of rapping was heard in the forehold. Thinking that the missing steward might have been imprisoned there, the men off duty made a thorough search of the cargo space, but failed to find any truee of him; but a faw days later the crew were startled by an emanciated appartition, which suddenly appeared on deck, coming from no one knows where. It was slivie, the lost steward. He was so weak that he could hardly stand and in a dazed condition, and unable to give any explanation of his disappearance or where he had been stowed away. Captain Crocker concluded that he had become insane, and on arrival at quarantine turned him over

That was in 1881, and in a note communicated to the Academy of Sciences I explained : ho advantages of the electric motor. In the first place, it works without a furnace, Secondly, its weight never dimin ishes nor increases during its working, and it is set in motion with the ton Plante and other savants and engineers. I was at last able to realize my project of an electric piotor. Our motor was not, however sufficient force to overcome that of the wind, and the best result obtained was that we remained stationary. When sailing with the wind, however, our screw propelled us in a very satisfactory manner. We were delighted with the easy working of the motor, and the result of this experiment was to confirm absolutely the principle that it s the electric motor that must be used. Although we did not make head way against a wind blowing at a rate of three meters the second, we were able to rereception and disper to the perty at 2 sist it and to deviate from its current by tacking with the greatest fa-ellity.—Gaston Tissandier in Mo-Olure's Magazine,
